Date of Services: The 2006 report includes payments made in 2007 for services rendered in 2006.

CME: The 2006 report does not include CME funded activities because any such payments are made to a CME provider, not to an individual practitioner.

Dual Licensed Prescribers: The 2006 report does not include Minnesota prescribers that are licensed in both Minnesota and another state and do not appear to maintain a Minnesota practice and were not seen by a sanofi-aventis employee in Minnesota.

Practitioners: If the credentials of a payee are not available from internal company records, the company used the Minnesota Board of Medical Practice and Board of Nursing websites to determine the credentials of those to whom payment was made. If the payee did not appear on either site or if the credentials were “RN” or “CDE,” the payment was not included in the 2006 report because the payee was determined not to be a “practitioner” as defined by Minnesota law.

Clinical Trials: The 2006 report does not include any payments made to an institution (e.g., academic medical center) for a clinical trial (as opposed to a payment solely for the investigator’s services), because it is not known whether, or how much, the investigator might have been paid by the institution. If an investigator’s practice was paid and the payment was for the investigator’s services, the amount paid to the practitioner was disclosed, provided the practitioner can be identified.

Market Research: The company conducts market research through vendors that comply with the Code of Ethics of Marketing Research Association (Code). The Code requires vendors to protect the anonymity of respondents. The 2006 report does not include market research conducted through the vendors because, as is standard in the market research industry, vendors neither disclose to the participant the sponsoring manufacturer nor disclose to the sponsoring manufacturer the names or other personal information of the participants.
